1. The first step is to identify the problem. In this case, the problem is that the system is not working properly.

2. The next step is to gather information about the problem. This includes checking the logs, looking at the error messages, and talking to the users.

3. Once you have gathered the information, you can start to troubleshoot the problem. This involves testing different hypotheses and trying to find the root cause of the problem.

4. Once you have found the root cause, you can start to fix the problem. This may involve changing the configuration, updating the software, or replacing hardware.

5. Finally, you should test the system to make sure that the problem has been fixed and that the system is working properly.
